Clarendon Games Priorities Game

Everyone knows there is no better time than the holidays spending quality time with friends and family and creating everlasting magical memories! Priorities by Clarendon Games is a hilarious cooperative party game of extreme honesty and absurd choices. What's more important to you: Netflix, climate change, or being right? What do you love more: kittens, your new girlfriend, or a long hug? In Priorities, rank five random, everyday items from love to loathe. Can your friends and family work together to predict your ranking? It's the players versus the game. Any correctly predicted item cards will be won by the players, but get the ranking wrong and the game will steal them. It's a race to see which team, the players or the game, can spell out Priorities with the letters on the back of the cards first! You'll be questioning how well your family and friends really know you as they work together to try to accurately predict your priorities. Be careful though! If you are the one choosing your priorities, you can't hint at your chosen order—it will be up to the others to work that out. All will be revealed as your preferences become the center of a hot debate! With a deck of 200 item cards, you'll never run out of fun combinations to rank, making Priorities a game you can play again and again.
